LUCCA, October 27.

THE laſt ſitting of our little ſenate was particular turbulent and ſtormy; ſeveral of their excellencies were driven from their curule chair, and the aſſembly could ſcarcely keep from blows. A conſiderable party has diſcontinued the legitimacy of the preſent government, and we are on the point of experiencing a revolution, which will probably deſtroy within our walls the expiring remains of our government.

PARIS, November 4.

General Bolair, to anſwer to the new ſyſtem of arming an infinity of ſmall cruiſers, inſtead of ſquadrons which we are unable to maintain, and to contribute to perfecting the object, propoſes a new kind of artillery, more light, which ſhall enable corvettes of 20 to 24 guns to defend themſelves againſt ſhips of 64 guns, which are a kind of ſhips the Engliſh employ to convoy their fleets of merchantmen. The following is what the general ſays in a letter to a journaliſt:

Corvettes, carrying from 20 to 24 guns, made after my invention, to carry 24 lb. balls, need not fear to engage veſſels of 64 guns, and eſpecially veſſels of 54 guns, ſuch as the Engliſh uſe as convoys for their merchantmen, and carry only 18 pounders on the firſt deck. This battery is often uſeleſs when engaged againſt an adverſary to leeward.

The 8 pounders now in uſe weigh from 21 to 22 cwt. The 6 pounders weigh 16 cwt. The 24 pounders, ſuch as I propoſe, weigh 22 cwt. at moſt: they may be reduced to 16 cwt. without leſſening the reach or effect of the balls, and will ſtill be ſuperior to the 24 pounders now in uſe, notwithſtanding the diminution of weight; by means of which they may be employed wherever the preſent ſizes are uſed.

November 8.

Letters from Weſel ſtate, that the Pruſſian cabinet has received advices which aſſure them that the French government intend, ſhould the war with Britain continue, to ſend a body of troops by the way of Bremen, to take poſſeſſion of Hamburg, in order to cloſe that port againſt the Britiſh on the continent. This news has cauſed much alarm, and it is ſaid that Pruſſia, ſhould ſuch a deſign exiſt, would oppoſe it.

The miniſter at war, in a circular letter addreſſed to the commiſſioners of the Executive Directory, complains that the neceſſary activity is not uſed to make the requiſition men join the armies, and requires them to redouble their zeal.

The Executive Directory has, by its reſolution of the 2d, ultimo, determined what exceptions are to be made from this general reſolution, and they authoriſe me to make the following:

"1ſt. Every individual who ſhall be proviſionally exempted.

"2d. Married men who, previous to the 23d, May laſt, were authoriſed to remain at home.

"3d. In ſhort ſoldiers who by their age are not comprehended in the firſt requiſition, and who have leave of abſence from the corps to which they belong, are exempted from the neceſſity of rejoining their armies."

November 9.

The congreſs of Raſtadt will open on the 1ſt, of December.

One of the Journals aſſerts, that Buonaparte has demanded full leave from the Directory to retire altogether, but that the Directory perſiſt in their determination to make him finiſh the negotiation at Raſtadt.

The duke de Richelieu has been appointed major-general and commander of the regiment of cuiraſſiers of his majeſty the emperor of Ruſſia.

LONDON, November 14.

An ambaſſador extraordinary from the court of Liſbon, is on his way to this country, in order to be on the ſpot to conſult with his majeſty's miniſters on any emergency.

Overtures have been made from the court of Spain to this country, for the renewal of amity, with a view to the recommencement of hoſtility with France! the king of Pruſſia is collecting a large army, and will ſoon be ſubſidized by England with the ſame view.

The laſt diſpatches from admiral earl St. Vincent, ſtate, that the Spaniards were laying up all their ſhips at Cadiz for the winter. This circumſtance induced his lordſhip to return to the Tagus, having left a ſquadron to watch the enemy.

Accounts received yeſterday from the coaſt of France, contradict thoſe on the authority of which it was ſome time ſince ſtated that the fleet at Breſt was diſmantling; on the contrary, it is now ſaid great exertions are making to fit a ſtrong ſquadron for ſea—the general idea prevailing is, that during the winter months, a new attempt will be made againſt Ireland, which country in France, is conſidered as in a ſtate of actual rebellion.

November 15.

It is certain that the laſt letters from Liſbon declare in the moſt decided terms of the Spaniſh court having ſignified to the Portugueſe government, that it would not ſuffer any French troops to march through Spain to attack Portugal. It is even intimated in ſome letters that the court of Madrid was about to make a ſeparate peace with this country.

NEW-YORK, January 6.

Extract of a letter from a gentleman in Havre to a reſpectable mercantile houſe in this city, received by the Roſetta.

"Havre, 6th November, 1797.

"There is now a project of an abſolute deſcent on England! The immortal Buonaparte is appointed commander in chief on this expedition. There is to be immediately aſſembled 120 thouſand men between Breſt and Honfleur, as well as another body of 100 thouſand men between this place and Dunkirk.

"HANOVER will be immediately attacked, and what will inſure our ſucceſs is, a ſecret article in our treaty with the emperor permitting the paſſage of our troops."

The conſul-general of the French republic in this city has received a letter from M. Talleyrand Perigord, the French miniſter for foreign affairs, dated on the day after the arrival of our commiſſioners at Paris (28th September) which mentions, that they had been cordially received by the French government—that the negotiation would be commenced as ſoon as poſſible—and that he had no doubt of an amicable adjuſtment of affairs between the two countries.

January 15.

There are letters in town, received by the eaſtern mail on Saturday, dated at London, Nov. 17, and written on "by the Diana." The eaſtern papers by Saturday's mail make no mention of ſuch an arrival—we therefore preſume ſhe arrived after the papers were printed; if ſo, we may expect extracts by this day's mail.

A letter of Nov. 17, ſays, inſurance to America is this moment at 12 guineas per 100l.

The diet of Ratiſbon has remonſtrated, in ſtrong terms, againſt the diſmemberment of the German empire, by the erection of the Cis-Rhinane republic; and againſt the perfidy of the French government, in favouring it, in direct violation of the preliminaries of peace.

A gentleman who came over in the Carteret packet, and who left Berlin the latter end of laſt month, deſcribes the king of Pruſſia as reduced to the moſt dreadful ſtate. He cannot, this gentleman ſays, be underſtood when he ſpeaks, but with extreme difficulty; and is unable to ſtand, or even to ſit in an erect poſture. [Lon. Pack. Oct. 27.]

POSTSCRIPT.

A ſhip belonging to Boſton, has arrived at Charleſton from Bourdeaux, which ſhe left on the 16th of November, with the news of our envoys being obliged to quit Paris. This we have from the mouth of captain Still, of the ſchooner Amphitrite, who had it from Mr. Thompſon, cuſtom houſe-officer of that port, he having boarded the ſhip at the Bar, the day captain S. ſailed, which was the 4th inſtant. [Gaz.]

BALTIMORE, January 19.

The Southern mail due yeſterday, arrived about 1 o'clock this afternoon. The following articles are copied from papers received by it.

CHARLESTON, January 5.

On Wedneſday evening the brig Sally, Joſeph H. Atkins, maſter, arrived in Rebellion road, in 53 days from Bourdeaux.

Captain Atkins left Bourdeaux on the 9th of November. Four days before he ſailed, captain Woodman, of the brig Aurora, of this port, then in Bourdeaux, received the following letter from general Pinckney:

"Paris, October 9, 1797.

"SIR,

"As it is poſſible our negotiations with this republic may not have a favourable iſſue, and that my colleagues and myſelf may be ordered to leave France, and as I underſtand you are bound to Charleſton, where I would wiſh to go with my wife, daughter, ſecretary, and perhaps two other gentlemen; I ſhould be glad to know if you take paſſengers, and have accommodations for them, and what are your terms, and the lateſt time you ſail. Be ſo good as to write me. This is not to be conſidered as an engagement to go in the Aurora, but merely as a letter requeſting information. I remain, very reſpectfully, your moſt obedient ſervant,

(Signed) CHARLES C. PINCKNEY.

Captain WOODMAN.

N. B. I think the Aurora is a ſhip [illegible] ſhould ſhe not be accommodated for paſſengers, can you inform of any veſſel at Bourdeaux [illegible] to ſail on the [illegible] November, for Charleſton, or near it."

As captain Atkins poſitively aſſerts, that the letter from general Pinckney was received about 4 days before he ſailed, it is probable that there is a miſtake in the date of the copy of the general's letter, and that it ought to be the 29th of October inſtead of the 9th, which would give 5 days, the time the couriers take to go from Paris to Bourdeaux. The poſtſcript to the letter, we think, confirms this opinion; for, if the general expected to be ordered away early in October, he would hardly put off his voyage to the 20th of November.

As captain Woodman would not be ready to ſail in a leſs time than twenty days, captain Atkins thinks it probable, that in caſe the commiſſioners are ordered away, general Pinckney will arrive in captain Woodman's veſſel.

At the date of general Pinckney's letter, the American commiſſioners had been 30 days in Paris—and though they had addreſſed a letter to the miniſter of foreign affairs, they were ſtill without a hearing.

In conſequence of this information, the American merchants in Bourdeaux were much alarmed, and they had been adviſed to get their property out of France as ſoon as poſſible, as there was a general opinion prevailing, that there would be a rupture between France and this country.

A Hamburg paper, under the Paris head of October 8, ſays, that the French demanded of the American commiſſioners, as the baſis of negotiation, a very large ſum, it was ſaid ſeventeen millions, by way of indemnification. But captain Atkins, who ſailed a month later, heard nothing of this particular.

It was confidently reported in Bourdeaux, that new propoſals for peace had been made by the Engliſh government to the Directory of France; but as ſoon as the terms offered were made known, the meſſenger received orders to leave Paris in the courſe of an hour.

The emperor of Germany had acceded to the terms of peace held out to him by France, in conſequence of which there had been rejoicings and illuminations at Bourdeaux on the occaſion, about 10 days before captain A. ſailed. Five different couriers brought the news of peace with the emperor to Bourdeaux.

General Buonaparte and his army, in conſequence of the peace with the emperor, had received orders to leave Italy, and prepare for another expedition; it was generally ſaid, that Portugal would be his object, though others were of opinion that an invaſion of England would be attempted.

A number of perſons implicated in the late conſpiracy, had been apprehended in Bourdeaux who were to be baniſhed.

The French were preparing for an expedition, but where it was not known.

Captain Atkins underſtood that lord St. Vincent's fleet had retired from before Cadiz.

The French cruiſers take all American veſſels bound to or coming from an Engliſh port.

The following are extracts of letters from Mr. Fenwick, the late American conſul at Bourdeaux, to his correſpondent in this city, dated the 26th October.

"There is no change in our favour; our plenipotentiaries are all in Paris, ſince near two weeks, and there has no kind of explanation taken place; they have delivered their credentials to the miniſter of foreign affairs, and the executive has given no anſwer, nor appointed any perſon to treat with them. We are entirely at a loſs to foreſee the iſſue of this buſineſs; in the preſent ſtage, it has rather an awkward appearance, though we cannot believe a rupture will take place between the two countries; as yet there are ſmall indications of it. War is decided on with England; and with Germany, the negotiations are, by this day, certainly ended, and peace concluded, or hoſtilities recommenced."

From the ſame, November 9.

"In conſequence of the hoſtile appearances with America, the bearer of this has changed his deſtination, and tells me he will touch at Charleſton. I don't think, for my own part, that there will be a rupture with the United States, yet the negotiation at Paris is likely to be without ſucceſs, and it is ſaid our miniſters are preparing to depart. There is no change in the conduct towards our commerce; and four veſſels carried into L'Orient, have been condemned at Vans in the court of appeals. Peace with the emperor is made definitively; the French have dictated."

Captain Atkins intended to ſail for a French port in the Weſt-Indies, but in conſequence of the news from general Pinckney, he thought it beſt to return to America; he brought no news papers.

January 22.

Extract of a letter from a reſpectable gentleman in Philadelphia, to another in this city, dated January 19.

"Information has been received to-day by the way of Baltimore, from Holland, as late as the 28th October, which contains the following intelligence, from authority that cannot be doubted—That a letter had been received from Paris, of the [illegible] of October mentioning that our commiſſioners had not been received, and had very little expectation of being received—that they were not actually ordered away, but were daily expecting it—and other circumſtances which corroborate the opinion, that the commiſſioners will be unſucceſsful. It is further added, that whatever may be the event, the conduct of the commiſſioners will be approved, as they had done every thing in their power to conciliate and promote a good underſtanding between the two countries."

Fifty Dollars Reward.

RAN away from the ſubſcriber, living near Stafford court-houſe, in the commonwealth of Virginia, about the middle of May laſt, a negro fellow named JACK, about five feet eight or nine inches high, nineteen years old, thick made and well ſet, ſtoops in the ſhoulders, and his complexion black, has a remarkable ſcar on the top of one of his feet, but I forget whether right or left; he carried with him the following cloaths, a greeniſh coloured great coat of elaſtic cloth, with buff cuffs and cape, a white caſimer veſt and breeches, a brown cloth veſt, and a calico veſt, but theſe he may change for other cloaths; this negro lately belonged to the eſtate of Mr. THOMAS STONE, in Charles county, Maryland, and may paſs himſelf for one of the Thomas family of negroes belonging to the ſaid eſtate, who make pretenſion to their freedom, but the fallacy of the attempt may be eaſily detected, as he is quite black, whereas the Thomas family are all of the mulatto colour; he can alſo read a little. I ſuſpect he is lurking about Baltimore or Annapolis; his mother is in the former city, who is alſo a runaway, and named RACHEL. I will give the above reward of fifty dollars to any perſon who will deliver him to me at my place of reſidence, or FORTY DOLLARS for ſecuring him in any gaol, ſo that I get him again.

Sixteen Dollars Reward.

RAN away from the ſubſcriber, living in Prince-George's county, two mulatto fellows called CHARLES and PATRICK MAHONEY; they have been away about three weeks; they pretend that they are ſet free by the verdict of a jury in the laſt general court, but were ordered by the court to return home till a point of law ſhould be ſettled relating to their caſe; this they refuſe to do. As they are well known in and about Annapolis and the foreſt of Prince-George's, where I ſuſpect they moſt be, I do hereby forewarn all perſons from harbouring or employing them, and will give any perſon EIGHT DOLLARS reward for ſecuring either of them in gaol. 3w
